HEADQUARTERS:

Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

October 30, 1963

The Honorable James R. Hoffa, President
International Teamsters' Union
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoffa:

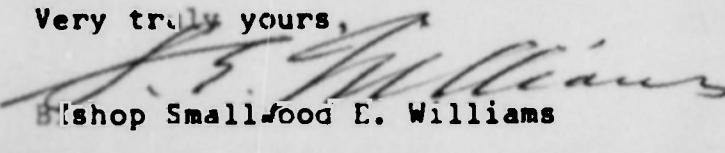

I wish to thank you and your Union for a financial gift to our school at Tappita, Central Province, Liberia, West Africa, which enabled us to purchase and send them a Jeep, about four years ago. It really did save the day for the African children at the village of Tappita, about 250 miles from Monrovia, in the Interior. I have an enrollment of approximately 100 children, whom we feed, educate, and furnish medical care.

We have a serious budgetary problem there. We need a donation of 55,000 to help us to carry on.

The local Highway program here, the center leg, which as planned, is causing us to face a relocation problem. It is seriously hindering our work, as we have just completed a $400,000 addition to the church's constructing of a Day-Care Nursery, Gymnasium, etc., down the street from your palatial headquarters building, in an underprivileged area of the Second Precinct. It seems to me that the Government has been derelict and faulty in its planning, which is causing a hardship on our church and the people which must be relocated without adequate provision being made for their relocation. Please read the news report from the Washington Post which I am enclosing.

Mr. Hoffa, I wish you to please express my thanks to your Finance Board which will make determination in the matter of this donation. The International Teamsters' Union has been very generous and has made some wonderful gifts to various institutions for the general community welfare. We congratulate you very highly for this public spirited attitude.

Very truly yours,

Bishop Smallwood E. Williams

Bible Way Church Members Fight District's Plan To Raze Building to Make Way for Leg of Freeway

By Dorothy Gilliam
Staff Reporter

When District Highway Department maps showed the center leg of the inner Loop heading straight through Bible Way Church in the tough Second Precinct, it was inevitable that the plan's unveiling would brew a torrential storm for the city.

The reason: a threat to the church is a threat to the community. At least many people feel that is so.

This important church, at 1130 New Jersey ave. nw, is the hub, culturally, morally and socially, of a major section of Washington.

Bible Way has 5000 members and a politically potent leader named Bishop Smallwood Edmond Williams.

It is a Sunday meeting place for all of five services each Sunday. But it is also a daily meeting place. It has an air-conditioned nursery that can handle up to 50 children of working mothers, a gymnasium for neighborhood boys, a library of 500 volumes, 10 religious education rooms. It also operates a social service store and has a 50-acre summer camp at Deale, Md.

Civil rights rallies often are held in its 2000-seat auditorium. Nearly 40 per cent of its members live within walking distance of the church.

Just up the street, at 3d and L, is the Bible Way Training School, where young preachers, missionaries and Sunday School workers are trained.

Because the church forbids the use of alcohol as lubricants and looks with disfavor upon dancing and moon-going, there is a moral stability among its members. It is that Williams says carries over into their everyday lives and makes the community better.

The church is pentecostal and evangelical. Its morning service is traditionally Protestant, but in the evenings, the members of the congregation "testify" of their personal experiences with God, sing, clap their hands, shout and dance.

Said one member: "The mornings belong to the preacher, the evenings to us. It's very democratic."

Says Bishop Williams of the threat of the bulldozer:

"The people in this area look upon our church as a symbol. They know its history and growth. It gives them hope. They will feel there is sort of a subtlety about a District Government that considers highways over humans."

"They will construe this as a lack of appreciation for their achievements."

With them it is kind of unthinkable that the District

Government would issue a permit to build a beautiful church then dare to do such as this. It seems so irresponsible and reckless."

Bishop Williams' words

drawed a stand less frequently by an elderly man near the filling station on the corner. He remonstrated when Bible

Way worshippers shook their tambourines within a canvas tent. "Are they really gonna tear it down?" he asked.

Doubtless, much of the church's remarkable influence in the community and its growth can be attributed to Bishop Williams, now a portly, graying man of 56 who started the congregation when he was 20.

Bishop Williams is a member of the executive committee of the District Democratic Central Committee, is president of the local chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and is a former member of the local NAACP's executive committee.

The cleric feels no scope is too big — or small — for his attention.

From his pulpit on Sunday morning and on his regular hour-long radio broadcast, he has reservedly blunt issues that range from civil rights to the treatment of natives in Africa.

His political posture can be illustrated by an event that took place in 1952, when Averell Harriman swept the Democratic primary here.

His intransigence resulted in the inclusion of Federal Judge Thurgood Marshall in the proclamation of Centennial celebrations here earlier this year. There had not been a Negro taking part in the pageant.

"I believe," he observed from his handsomely appointed office, "that the minister should be outspoken and a Christian statesman," but not a politician. Bishop Williams sometimes hovers near to being just that, however.

To be taken, the shrill of a child from the nursery below and the sound of a woman singing to them in a low voice punctuated the quiet of the room.

Bible Way has told the District Commissioners and the Congress that it would be a moral tragedy to pluck the church from its neighborhood.

Among those who have come to bat for Bible Way is Sen. Robert Humphrey (D-Minn.), who recently wrote Commissioner Walter N. Johnson that "it is difficult to believe that razing Bible Way is necessary."

Highway department plans for the freeway that would extend between the south-west 8th and 9th and 10th and 11th streets will be submitted to the city council on Sept. 10.

Dear Sir:

I recently had the pleasure of visiting our foreign mission Church in the Central Province of Liberia, W. Africa. Last year the Liberian Government gave us 200 acres of land for the purpose of building a school and Church. Both of these are now under construction.

While there I observed that one of our great needs is a pick-up truck; therefore, I promised to send one immediately, which will cost approximately $2,000 (two thousand dollars) including transportation. I have succeeded in receiving about $1,000 (one thousand dollars) of this money, and we are appealing to you through your good offices and the generosity of your Organization, which is well known, to kindly donate the sum of $1000 (one thousand dollars) to this cause, of which we and the people of Africa will be very grateful to you and your Organization, the Teamsters' Union.

Best wishes.
